Monthly Technical Meeting:*

Speaker: Ian N Robertson, Ph.D, S.E

“Performance of Corrosion Inhibiting Admixtures in a Marine Environment”

About the Speaker:

Ian N. Robertson, Ph.D., S.E., is Professor of Structural Engineering at the University of Hawaii at Manoa and a licensed structural engineer in the State of Hawaii. He has 30 years of research and design experience in the performance of structures under severe exposure conditions, including coastal and marine environments, and during extreme events including earthquakes, hurricanes and tsunamis. He has performed long-term field studies of the corrosion of concrete reinforcing steel and cold-formed steel framing. He has also participated in post-disaster field surveys subsequent to Hurricane Katrina (2005), the Kiholo Bay Earthquake in Hawaii (2006), and tsunamis in Samoa (2009), Chile (2010) and Japan (2011).
